ITShastra Awarded ISO 27001:2005

Mumbai, Maharashtra, India, Wednesday, February 01, 2012 -- (Business Wire India) ITShastra, a software development, testing and design company for worldwide business needs and offshore project delivery, today announced that it has been awarded ISO 27001:2005 Certification. The standard provides a model for establishing, operating, reviewing and improving an Information Security Management System (ISMS) to ITShastra with a trusted framework which ensures ITShastra and client data is secured.

Prasad Nagool, ITShastra CEO, said, "We have achieved a milestone by getting ISO27001 certification. This accreditation strengthens our client's belief in us about their data security since we operate in the US Financial and Healthcare sector where data security is a prime concern"

Ramesh Devare, ITShastra COO said "this is a major achievement for ITShastra. Earlier in 2011, ITShastra was awarded ISO9001 certification and also the "Best Software Solution Provider in Mumbai by Brands academy" for 2011. This certification is a proof of our commitment towards Information Security and now plan to go for CMM certification by mid 2012.

Sameer Desai, CISO for ITShastra said that the "CIA (Confidentiality-Integrity-Availability) framework was primarily used in combination with the RISK management methodology in securing the Information Assets. A strong framework will ensure that the ISMS is maintained and improved even during our rapid expansion program."
